
331 DISTANCE SIGNING AND CONTROL CITY PLAN

A distance sign may show a maximum of three destinations and the approximate distances from the sign to these destinations. The intent is not to make all three legend signs but to designate the legend to be used on one-, two-, or three- legend signs.

The bottom line shall contain the name and distance of the control city for the route as shown in paragraphs 331.2 and 331.3. The control city should normally remain the same throughout the length of the route until that destination is reached. However, when there are two control cities of equal significance, they may be shown on alternate signs.

In the case of the U.S. and State highways, the top line should contain the name and distance of the next intermediate destination for the route as shown in paragraph 331.3. Where there are two intermediate destinations of equal significance, three legends may be used.

In the case of a freeway, the top line shall identify the next meaningful interchange with the name and the distance of the community near or through which the freeway passes or, if there is no community, the route number or name of an intersecting highway. The middle line, if used, should be the name and distance of the next intermediate destination for the route as shown in paragraph 331.2. Under certain conditions, the middle line can be varied on successive distance signs.

The intermediate destinations in this guideline and other locations or communities which meet the definition of intermediate destinations may be displayed on distance signs.

On freeways in the Phoenix and Tucson urban areas where interchanges are so closely spaced that normal distance guide signs cannot be adequately spaced, interchange sequence series signs (E8-1) may be used instead of normal distance guide (E7) signs. The interchange sequence series signs should display the next two or three interchanges by name or route number with distances shown to the nearest 1/4 mile.

To encourage the use of rest areas instead of parking on highway shoulders, the message REST AREA and distance to the rest area may be used as an optional top or middle line of distance signs.

Distances shall be shown to the nearest mile, measured to the center of the destination. To aid in determining distances to the cities outside of Arizona, paragraph 331.1 shows distances from the Arizona State Line to destinations in neighboring states and in Mexico.

Distance signing for roadways other than freeways shall have the approval of the Regional Traffic Engineer. Distance signing for freeways shall have the approval of the State Traffic Engineer.

331.2 CONTROL CITY PLAN - INTERSTATE

The bottom line shall contain the name and distance of the control city for the route. This control city should remain the same throughout the length of the route until that destination is reached. Control cities are as listed below.

The top line shall identify the next meaningful interchange with the name and distance of the community near or through which the route passes; or, if there is no community, the route number or name of the intersecting highway.

The middle line, if used, should be the name and distance of the next intermediate destination for the route. However, when there are two intermediate destinations of equal importance, they may be shown on alternate signs. Intermediate destinations are listed below following the control cities.
